The Hood2Hood event celebrated and communicated the research carried out by the AIR Network team. It included displays of AIR Network maps; creating murals to illustrate project findings; story-telling events; an exhibition of work by local school children describing their experiences of air pollution; live performances of songs created by Mukuru musicians specially for the AIR Network; DJs, MCs, singing and dancing; live interactive theatre performances and group games; face painting and clowns; opportunities for group discussions about the project, what to do next and how to take forward community-driven ideas to solve the problem of local air pollution.
