Title: Digesting knowledge production (nibbles and tidbits) in material spaces

In this presentation the authors of the book 'Knowledge production in material spaces: Disturbing conferences and composing events' (2022, Routledge) will digest and ruminate with various conceptual, theoretical, material nibbles and tidbits, morsels, and dainties of academic knowledge production and disturbed conferences. Digestion as material, conceptual, bodily, and sensorial practice enables collective relationality and unexpected connectivity in material spaces within and outside Academia. The composing events written within the book will pepper and salt the materially constructed spaces of conferences. The presenting authors will make (distant and delicious) references to conference events illustrated and discussed in the book while joining the audience in discussing and digesting their food, imbibing, and swallowing their drinks. Audience members are reminded that digestion in this session calls for self-provided eatable and drinkable matter and that this is an invitation to knowledge as convivial participation.
