

Acknowledgements

I have incurred debts during the process of conducting this study. I am particularly thankful to the many participants who have been prepared to talk with me and to share their lives at a time when some were still experiencing the trauma and negative effects of miscarriage of justice, including wrongful imprisonment. I want to thank them for their generosity, candour and humour and for letting me glimpse into and share their private moments of frustration, joy and resolve as they campaigned against wrongful conviction. I would like to especially thank Professor Steve Savage who, as my supervisor, has always made himself available to provide support and advice. His guidance has been instructive and thought-provoking. I would also like to acknowledge the support provided by my second supervisor, Dr Jackie Tapley. Furthermore, I would like to thank Dr Sarah Charman and Dr Francis Pakes for conducting my Major Review and Professor Mike Nash and Mr Tom Ellis for conducting my internal viva. The assistance provided at these two meetings was invaluable. Finally, and importantly, my love and gratitude go to my wife, Tina, for all her support and encouragement.
