Summary

I am a Senior Lecturer in the School of Architecture. I joined the University of Portsmouth after being an architect involved in public projects for a large Local Authority. I believe that an architectural design education not only leads students to a vocation as an architect, but also gives a broader understanding of the situation around us.

As professionals within the built environment, we endeavour to understand the world surrounding us. We use architecture as a way to create deeper experience before we attempt to solve problems by design.
